

This is a storyline of me walking my dog at the school/park next to my house :)

First row: Entering the school with my dog still on leash. As you can see, there was no one else there...

Second row: First image is a sign saying we are not allowed in the park but I just pretend like I can't read and ignore it...shhh dont tell anyone, but don't worry I don't have corona, I promise. And me just throwing the ball and setting all my stuff down.

Third row: On my way home as I walk through the school. They took off all the nets of the basketball hoops because they don't want people gathering to play together.

And a picture of one of the doors that they painted saying, "Be Bold. Be Brave. BeYOUtiful." (I know it looks blurry but if you zoom in I promise you it's not)

Last row: Walking past the school and first image shows many more signs saying that parks and school are closed...oops. Third image is my neighbor's house, Sam and Patty. If you zoom in you can actually see there cat Lulu sitting in front of their door. She is the sweetest cat and the cutest. Last image is when I get home right before I go into the garage and we have our cars on the side.

Hope you enjoyed cute pictures of my dog and me not paying attention to signs :)
